

TREASURE TROVE

From antique artefacts to modern neon – Jessica Diamond rounds up the trends and names to know in the world of jewellery

NEW BRAND

EERA

If you want to tap into the jewellery zeitgeist, then the Milanese brand Eéra is the one for you. Achingly hip, its signature carabiner earring is the motif to wear for a serious dose of Italian insouciance.

Satisfyingly utilitarian in form, the most covetable versions are coated in enamel in eye-popping neon shades (the other jewellery trend that is huge at the moment), while a smattering of diamonds only adds to the lust factor. No wonder Dua Lipa and Florence Pugh are fans.

@eera

FROM LEFT Chiara single earring, £1,339, Romy single earring, £4,441, and Sabrina ear cuff, £2,466, Eéra; brownsfashion.com

NUMISMATICS

Thanks to the likes of Bulgari, Dubini and Elizabeth Gage, coin collecting is suddenly cool. For her latest line, Gage sourced antique coins and set them into chunky, irregular molten bands to create a line of fine rings. The ultimate in upcycling, breathing new life into ancient artefacts.

Philip II of Macedon (359-336BC) silver coin ring, £4,800; elizabeth-gage.com

